

Eating Soy-Free at UMass

Questions or concerns

Please ask the cashier to radio the manager so they can assist immediately.

Items from the Kitchen

If you see an item with soy at a station next to a food you would like but worry about cross contact, please ask the staff to get a portion of the desired item from the kitchen for you.

Identifying Soy as an Allergen

UMass Dining identifies the soy allergen for any product that contains soy oil, soy lecithin or soy protein.

Sushi

The crab sticks used contain soy. If you have a severe allergy, call ahead at least 1 hour in advance to request your sushi is made separately to avoid cross contact. Soy sauce is not in the recipe but it is served on the side for self-service. Please inform the manager of the facility if you have a soy allergy so precautions can be made to ensure your safety.

Breads

Purchased breads may have soy in them. Check the UMass Dining app/web site to see if the UMass Bake Shop breads have soy in them.

Desserts

Desserts may also have soy ingredients due to purchased mixes. Some recipes made from scratch may not contain soy in them. Please check our website, app or menu identifier to view ingredients and/or allergens.

Canola and Olive Oils

These oils are used in the dining commons recipes. No soy oil is used as a main ingredient in recipes but could be in ingredients of foods we use in cooking.

Avoid Deep-Fried Foods

As the deep fryer may be contaminated with soy from other products.
